++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Sunnier, warmer south on Sunday, then much colder from north.

This Evening and Tonight:
Rather cloudy across the far north with some drizzle, with cloudier skies also for parts of south-east England. Clear periods elsewhere with rural frost and some patches of fog and low cloud developing.

Sunday:
Central and southern areas dry with plenty of sunshine and becoming rather warm by afternoon. Becoming windy in north with rain moving south, then colder with snow showers far north.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Unseasonable cold, especially in strong winds, with sunshine and wintry showers. The showers most frequent in the north and around the eastern and western coasts. Steadily improving Wednesday.
